TSP OFFERS SPICE ENLIGHTENMENT THIS HOLIDAY SEASON
Organic Spice Company Takes the Stress Out of Buying

Atlanta, GA (October 2007) – This holiday season, tsp's founders Katie Luber and Sara Engram are showing customers how to use their flavorful, organic herbs and spices to take a trip around the world without leaving the kitchen. tsp spices sells organic spices in perfectly measured, freshly sealed, single-use packages. To coincide with the holiday season, tsp recently upgraded their website, www.tspspices.com, to make shopping and gift-giving easy and fun.

“Fresh spices bring back memories of the holiday season,” says Luber. “Cold weather, spicy aromas, friends and family gathering together to celebrate with good food. “

Packaged in eye-catching boxes, tsp offers a variety of individual spices and pre-selected spice collections and gift sets. Included with each spice order, patrons have the option of including customized gift messages. The website also makes it easy to ship gifts to different locations in a single order and to store addresses for future orders.

Luber and Engram are Southerners who were raised on fresh, ripe vegetables and food grown close to home. Their shared love of cooking and appreciation for how full-flavored food can enhance interaction with family and friends became the foundation for tsp spices. They consider this interaction the “spice of life” and provide it to those seeking culinary adventures and full-flavored food.

tsp spices is Luber and Engram’s way of making it easier for cooks everywhere to provide healthy, delicious surprises every time and everywhere they serve food to the people they love. Their products, “packets of pure adventure,” make measuring spoons obsolete and also protect spices from light and air to ensure freshness and the fullest flavor. A reprieve from spice cabinet chaos, these one-teaspoon spice packets are stored in tin cans that look great displayed on the kitchen counter, which makes them a perfect gift for home cooks.

For both accomplished chefs and culinary novices, yet another adventure awaits in these little packets: the ease and convenience to self-blend. Rather than forcing users to cook with the same flavor combination time and time again, tsp spices allow for easy creation of any seasoning set that strikes one's fancy.
